

Protecting Workers from Extreme Heat in NYC

A roundtable with workers and NYC Deputy Mayor for Economic Justice Julie Su

Workers will share firsthand accounts of how extreme heat impacts their daily work. Each worker will describe the physical toll of heat exposure on the job, the gaps or safeguards currently in place, and what change would mean for them and their coworkers, grounding the policy conversation in lived experience.

The TEMP Coalition, chaired by NYCOSH, is partnering with Deputy Mayor Julie Su and the Mayor's Office of Economic Justice, 32BJ the BlueGreen Alliance, and National COSH.
